DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Norton.

In figure 1, the Norton patent shows a lumen having a proximate end and a distal end, an inflatable cuff surrounding said lumen, the lumen having a first and a second conduit, the first conduit in fluid communication with the inflatable cuff, the second conduit in fluid communication with the proximate end of the lumen, a port at an end of the first conduit, and a "one-way" valve.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Norton in view of Meythaler et al., Brady, and Ericson.

The Norton patent does not disclose the use of a syringe in combination with the catheter, a hydrophobic filter, and/or a charcoal filter. However, the use of syringes to infuse or withdraw substances into or from the body is conventional in the art as evidenced by the teachings of Meythaler et al. Additionally, this patent also demonstrates the conventionality of designing catheters with hydrophobic filters (38) in the proximal end of a catheter. Concerning the use of charcoal filters, the Brady patent demonstrates that designing catheters with charcoal filters in the distal end of the catheters is well known in the art.

Finally, the Ericson patent has been included in this rejection to demonstrate the conventionality of designing catheter filters in the tubular walls of the catheter. The examiner wants to make it clear in this rejection that it is well known in the art to design catheters with filters at the distal and proximal ends of a catheter and/or in the tubular wall of the catheter as suggested by Ericson.

Based on the above observations, for a person of ordinary skill in the art, modifying the catheter disclosed in the Norton patent to include a syringe, and hydrophobic and charcoal filters would have been considered obvious enhancements in view of the discussed conventionalities of these enhancements.
